"The magic of Paper and Light lies in the eloquence of shadows"

Jenny Pinto is a studio handmade papermaker in India, based in Bangalore. Her studio in Bellandur is one of Bangalore's first green buildings.

Jenny was an ad film director in Bombay for 20 years before she decided to move to Bangalore to explore hand craft. Handmade paper was what she chose to pursue after a chance meeting with a papermaker and she hasn't looked back since. She worked with a papermaker in the US and returned to set up her studio in 1998, from where she has been exploring various fibres and the nuances of paper for the purpose of lighting.

Her designs are really about how shadow plays with light. Textured and sculpted for drama, whether the light is on or not, her lights add a lot of warmth and depth to a space. Inspired by natural and urban landscape, the designs are artisanal, contemporary, subtle yet dramatic and green.

Paper can be made from the fibres of most plants but some plants have the properties to make very strong and durable paper. After all, well preserved manuscripts, paintings and books have lasted centuries.

While most handmade paper in India is made from the fibres of cotton hosiery, jute and bagasse (sugarcane waste), the paper in Jenny's studio is made from banana fibre and lokta (mulberry family) because they are very strong. However, strong fibres require a different process and take a longer time to make.

The paper making process used is the traditional one, using no harsh chemicals, hand-lifting the sheets and drying it naturally which gives the paper extra strength. Jenny has developed a unique process to make really translucent paper that is ideal for lighting. Each sheet takes about four days to make and the resulting paper is strong enough to texture and sculpt. Since the entire process is in-house, her studio has probably done with paper what no one else in the country has.

Dori explores the nuances of textile techniques in paper. Inspired by the Japanese philosophy of 'mottainai' (no waste) and art of 'shibori' (tie and dye), the shades are either woven from leftover paper scraps on a handloom or clamp and tie-dyed to create patterns.

Care Instructions

We manufacture our own paper from natural fibres. The process we use to make our lights make them stronger and translucent. With proper care, the paper lights could last for as long as 10 or more years. Here are a few tips on how to look after them.

- Frequently dust with a feather duster or vacuum clean on blow mode.
- Avoid exposure to moisture and rain.
- Use the recommended type and wattage of bulb to avoid burn marks on the paper.
- In humid climatic conditions, use the lamp on a regular basis, so the paper remains dry.
- Paper is made from natural fibres, so discolouration is a natural aging process (like old books). Proper maintenance could slow the process down.
- Handle with care when installing and dusting. Keep away from children and pets.
- We recommend paper lights for indoor use only.

In case, you would like any changes to a current product or you have any repair requirement we are happy to assess and execute the same
